Every few years, the United States attempts to count every person in the country through a process called the Federal Census. It is mandated by Article I, Section 2 of the U.S. Constitution. The last Census was conducted on April 1, 2010, and provides a snapshot of how many people there are and where they live.

Drill down to learn how many people there are and where they live in the County of Los Angeles. The population figures reflect the 2010 Census, and are subject to change in the years following the Census.

Per California Statute, Code Section 27605 et seq., the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors is required to adjust the boundaries of any or all of the Supervisorial districts, following a decennial Federal Census in order to secure Fair Representation. Adjustments to the boundaries are made to ensure the Supervisorial Districts are as compact and contiguous as possible.

NOTES:

A blue color indicates the Supervisorial District of Supervisor (A) based on the original boundaries as of January 2019. Orange color indicates the Supervisorial District of Supervisor (A) based on newly adjusted boundaries as of May 1, 2019.
